AUSTRIA-Kossuth's Family-It having been found impossible to establish a case against Mesdames Meszlenvi and Rutkay, they have been liberated, and are now CHARITY.-A kind hearted old lady was residing in the Hotel National, in the Leonce reproved quite sharply by her friends polandstadt. The Austrian Government has for giving money to a stranger, who seemed at length come to the conclusion that nothing to be very poor, when he asked charity in is to be gained by detaining Kossuth's relations here, and accordingly the whole family some 17 persons, I believe-will be permitted to quit this country on the 1st of May. ble answer was: "If you must suppose at all, As people here can never do any thing with a good grace, difficulties have been raised on the Kossuth family emigrating alone, which, in my opinion, is most unreasonable, as there are four females and eleven children of the party. From a perfectly credible source, I learn that Madame Meszlenyi, says that a new style of watches has been who is said to have as much moral courage as all the rest of the family put together, completely baffied all the attempts of the authorities to extract any information of consequence from her.

The military judge (auditor) to whom the case was intrusted, dictated a protocol purporting to be a recapitulation of the admissions made by the defendants, and Madame Meszlenyi was instructed to sign it .tion is so simple that any watchmaker can "Never," cried the spirited woman, "will I consent to sign that which, though not positively false, is not perfectly true. Let me dictate the protocol, which I am well able to do, and then I will willingly sign it." Justice requires that I should state that Kossuth's sisters were kindly treated during the imprisonment, and that their mother's letters to them were duly delivered after having been read by the authorities to whose sale keeping they were entrusted.
